UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
DIRECTOR OF EXTENSION WORK
WASHINGTON, D. C.

o Circular letter
Rural Electrification No. 3.

To State Extension Directors:

Re: Rural Electrification.

David S. Weaver, Head of the Department of Agricultural Engineering of North Carolina State College, and Rural Electrification Specialist for the Extension Service at the same institution, has been granted a year's leave of absence to work with the Extension Service of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Weaver, a graduate of Ohio State University, has been engaged in agricultural engineering teaching and extension work for the past fifteen years. In connection with his extension work, he directed a survey of the rural electrification possibilities in the one hundred counties of North Carolina. This survey has been the basis of a program which in 1935 resulted in the extension of 758 miles of rural lines, serving nearly 5000 rural customers.

The Rural Electrification Administration, in inaugurating its program, expressed a desire to secure the cooperation of the Department of Agriculture and the State Extension Services. As a result, Mr. Weaver has been employed to assist the Extension Services of the various States in carrying out a program to obtain the many benefits of electricity for the people of rural America.

He will be available for consultation and cooperation with Extension Directors and their staffs in the development of rural electrification programs.

Very truly yours,
